

Institutional Membership at TASSA

The mutually beneficial relationship TASSA has with its membership now includes the scientific and scholarly contributions that may come from organizations enabled to gain member status. The newly amended TASSA bylaws has paved the way to invite organizations to register as members of TASSA.

TASSA is pleased to announce the newly established membership category: Institutional Member. This category will allow the rich science and technology culture of organizations to get closer to TASSA as it strives to fulfill its mission. Founded in 2004, TASSA has made great strides in bringing together a vibrant scientific and scholarly community around a compelling idea: To forge a sustainable science and technology bridge between Turkey and the US. The grassroots effort that gave birth to TASSA has now grown to a full-fledged society, ready to invite organizations to join the roster of its membership.

Serving multiple purposes, TASSA institutional membership:

- Creates a channel connecting universities, research funding and other organizations that support the mission of TASSA, and the membership at large
- Provides access to TASSA resources by multiple individuals working for the institutional member organization
- Offers special privileges as described in this document
- Presents significant networking opportunities in a highly selective group of scientists and scholars
- Generates an opportunity to support TASSA in its efforts to accomplish its objectives .

We would be proud to list the many distinguished organizations, nonprofit and for profit alike, among our members and engage in productive dialog to benefit our organizations. The levels of institutional membership and their conditions are summarized on the back side of this document. Please contact a TASSA officer to initiate your institutional membership or ask any questions you may have before joining. TASSA needs your support, your expertise and your ideas to help achieve its goals. Together, we can forge a sustainable science and technology bridge between Turkey and the US.

Imagine the next generation of scientists and help us forge their scientific future.

For information on membership categories please see appended document. Application form can be downloaded from TASSA webpage under Membership/Application section.
